In Slump, Says Ruth.

"All of us have been in a batting slump," said the curly "Babe" Ruth in the clubhouse, where he sat assiduously sandpapering his war club. "I understand McGraw has given orders to his pitchers to work the corners of the plate, and that if they walk me it is all right, but they are not to throw any balls in the groove. If they pass me to first how do they figure to stop me stealing bases?"

The Giants are dumfounded at the work of the American leaguers on the ball. Ruth hit a few long over work of the American leaguers on the ball. Ruth hit a few long the base paths, for they had been told to whet the appetites of the ro

Unless Congress comes to its reief, the War Department will be obliged to make several important modifications in its plans for the bur ial of the body of an unknown American soldier in the Arlington national cemetery, Armistice day.

That is due to a decision by the accounting officers of the Treasury that the traveling and living expenses of troops at distant stations, and of of troops at distant stations, and of medal-of-honor men, war veterans from each state and representatives of the American Legion and other states and representatives of the American Legion and other states are stated in the state and representatives of the American Legion and other states are stated in the state of from each state and representatives of the American Legion and other permanent war veteran societies, who were to have been invited to take part in the ceremonies, cannot be met out of the funds provided by the joint resolution of Congress.

That measure authorized the expenditure "of so much as may be necessary" for bringing the body of the unknown soldier from its grave in France to this city and for its burial in the Arlington Memorial Amphitheater.

No Other Funds in Hand.

There are no other funds available for the transportation and care of the troops and specially invited guests, it is said, at the War Department, and it is planned to ask Congress to make special provision for that purpose.

the public buildings commission by estimates will not last, at the most appropriation this year of funds necessary for the construction of the archives building, not only because the need is an imperative one, but also because of the fact that Congress has authorized the building and the Jurchase of a site, but has not appropriated any funds for it.

The following year, in his opinion, provision should be made for beginning the construction of the building for the general accounting office, which is a new branch of the government established this year to take over the activities of the controller of the Treasury and the several audi-

of the Treasury and the several auditors for the government departments. Under the old organization it worked well to have the auditors and the controller in various parts of the city, but under the new order of things it is absolutely necessary and in the interest of greater efficiency to have the entire office under one roof.

When these two buildings are provided for and construction has started, Col. Sherrill would have Congress make provision for placing the bureau of internal revenue in a separate building, so that all the activities could be assembled for efficient management.

In making these recommendations Col. Sherrill stated that he was not unmindful of the President's determination and of the urgent necessity for rigid economy in government operations, but he believes that immediate provision for these buildings is an imperative one and that it would s an imperative one and that it would is an imperative one and that it would really be economy to provide them.

Other estimates coming within the wide scope of his office have been trimmed to the bone, he pointed out, but in the face of the demand for great economy he believes the construction of these buildings at the earliest possible moment is a prime precessity. For instance Col. Shewill earliest possible moment is a prime necessity. For instance, Col. Sherrill pointed out that the estimates for the extension of Rock Creek Park and Potomac Parkway had been cut from $200,000 to $100,000, and that the estimates for other parks had been greatly reduced. He said that in the park estimates only those which were absolutely necessary were included. The estimates for the State, War and Navy building also were greatly reduced.

No estimate of the amounts which should be appropriated for these buildings is included in the recom-mendations, Col. Sherrill confining his recommendations to the amount of space. He pointed out to the commission that 500,000 square feet is
